

Postponement Of Today's Game Helps Senators

Rain Today Adds an Extra Day of Rest to Pitching Arm of Johnson Which Will Prove Abiding Factor in Series—Pirates Disappointed.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 9.—Washington weather conditions, being a strictly local institution and not without civic bias, today connived to come to the aid of the Senators by causing a postponement of the third game of the world series with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Rain began falling shortly after 7 o'clock this morning and to Stanley Harris, every drop was a glistening gem of purest ray serene.

More Rest For Johnson.
The rain gave the well known young man a chance to re-marshal his forces and to add an extra day of rest to the pitching arm of Walter Johnson, which beyond all doubt is to prove the abiding factor in this series. The Senators, seemingly, must ride to victory or defeat on what Johnson's arm may be able to do in the next five days.

Pirates Disappointed.
To the Pirates, the postponement was a vast disappointment. They came on from Pittsburgh last night, in the full flush of a victory over Stanley Coveleskie in the second game of the series, deadlocking the issue at one-all and were more than passing confident of their ability to make it two straight today.

Bluege Also Helped.
The Senators also can muster a few "maidens" in the pitching stakes, namely, Dutch Ruether, Alex Ferguson and Tom Zachary, but it wasn't the exigencies of the moment that counted so much. What the Senators really wanted was additional rest for Johnson and they got it. The interval, likewise, was very helpful to Bluege who still was a bit groggy from the blow on the head he sustained yesterday.

Three Games at Washington.
Otherwise, however, the situation remained unchanged, the third game going over to tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock and the next two contests on the local schedule being put forward one day each.
This meant that the contending teams would remain here over Monday and then return to Pittsburgh for the last two games, unless one club or the other reeled off three straight victories here. This would put an automatic end to the proceedings.
However, few looked for such a contingency. In the opinion of the majority, it was to be Pittsburgh again on Tuesday, provided no further postponements here occurred. Their seventh game, if one is necessary, also will be played in the land of smoke.

Little Business for Scalpers.
Scalpers took advantage of the lull to cajole visitors as they strolled along Pennsylvania avenue or stood idly in the hotel lobby. The paste board bandits worked openly. They seemed however, to do little business, if at all. Fifty dollars for single tickets was the general price quoted to anyone who seemed interested.

Betting Even Money.
The change of scene served to reduce the odds of six to five on the Pirates to something very close to even money. Washington overnight had lined up behind its champions in what little betting transpired.
It was felt that a return to the home diamond might benefit the Senators, who have complained that the surface of Forbes Field was too rough to permit clean handling of the ball. However, it was noted that the Pirates experienced no such difficulty, playing errorless ball in both games. It also was pointed out by the sharpshooters that the local park, with its wider outfield range, would aid the defensive activities of Cuyler and Carey. With more space in which to roam, it was expected that these human greyhounds might begin to cut off some of the long hits Harris and Judge have been making.

Landis Calls Off Game.
Rain was falling steadily, and showed no signs of letting up when it was finally decided to call off the third game. The field was soggy from a series of showers that began shortly before 8 o'clock and continued throughout the forenoon.
After surveying conditions Judge Rogers M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, officially called off the game, after conferring with club officials and the umpires.

Thousands Disappointed.
Just as soon as the game was officially postponed, the rain ceased. The weather bureau, however, predicted more showers probable during the afternoon, and this was largely instrumental in impelling officials to declare things off.
The postponement disappointed thousands of capital fans—particularly the hundreds who had stood in the rain in the early morning hours waiting for the general admission boucher tickets.

S. M. Watts on Zoning Board

Mayor Morris Block has filed the appointment of Samuel M. Watts as a member of the city zoning board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of J. Graham Rose. The zoning board will meet on Wednesday afternoon, November 4, to consider several matters that have been filed with it.
Mr. Watts, the new member of the zoning board, is well known and was a member of the first board of public works when that board was created during the Canfield administration. His appointment to the important zoning board will meet with general approval.

Harnen Jailed, License Revoked

William Harnen of West Strand Arrested for Reckless Driving—Officer Aley's Narrow Escape—Other Police Court Cases.

William Harnen of West Strand, who was recently held to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated and who was released on bail pending the disposition of the case, was arrested on Thursday by Officer Aley on a charge of reckless driving. With Harnen in the car were David Isaacson and Peter Leskie, who were also arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

According to the officer's report of the arrest he had a narrow escape from being run down and injured by Harnen and if he had not jumped to one side in time he would have been knocked to the street by the auto.
This morning Judge Harry E. Schirick in police court jailed Harnen for five days and revoked his license to operate an automobile. His two friends, Isaacson and Leskie, were discharged with a reprimand to watch their step in the future.

Fighting on Wall Street.
Joseph Izzo and B. J. Gottlieb were arrested by Officer Brophy on Thursday on a charge of staging a fight on Wall street in the business section. The hearing was adjourned to October 20.

Traffic Cases.
Harry L. Taylor of 398 Foxhall avenue, arrested for driving on the left hand side of the Strand, paid a $2 fine.

Joe Hoffman of 143 Henry street, arrested for failure to obey a traffic signal at North Front and Wall streets, paid a $3 fine.

Must Support Family.
Charles Calkins, arrested on a warrant obtained by his wife, who charged him with failure to support her, was placed under $500 bond to pay his family $10 weekly toward their support.

Under Arrest for Manslaughter

Harry Levine of New York was arrested in that city Thursday by Sheriff Herman S. Wells and State Trooper Ross, acting chief of police at Ellenville, and brought him to the Ulster county jail. He is charged with manslaughter in having run down with an automobile near Spring Glen a man named Swartzman who was walking upon the highway about three weeks ago. The man was picked up by Levine but he died from a fracture of the skull at the Veterans' Hospital in Ellenville. Levine failed to report the accident to any magistrate in the town of Wawarsing or to the sheriff of Ulster county as the law directs. During the summer Levine, who has a brother in Ellenville, has been doing a taxi business in that section.

He will be arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald at Ellenville today.

Three Persons Die in Flames

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 9.—Three persons were burned to death in their beds, two others escaped by leaping from a window, being seriously hurt in the fall and a fireman was injured when fire destroyed a three story dwelling here today.

Firemen fought their way through the flames to find the bodies of Joseph and Mary Williams, negroes. Mrs. Maud Potter, 39, was found dead in an adjoining apartment.

YOUNG WOMAN RUN DOWN BY MAN ON A BICYCLE

Frank A. Dunnigan of No. 34 Fairview avenue reported to the police this morning that while riding his bicycle he struck Miss Kelder, a young woman residing at No. 61 Boulevard, at the corner of Fair and St. James streets, knocking her down. She was taken to her home by Mr. Finch of 155 Ten Broeck avenue in his automobile.

Continue Damage Case in Court

Plaintiff Rests in Suit Arising Out of Death of John Fenwick Near Esopus—Two Passengers on Bus in Which He Was Passenger Give Testimony.

In the supreme court today the action brought by Emily Fenwick, as administratrix, etc., against Benjamin Seides and John DuBois, was continued. Thursday plaintiff asked permission to amend the complaint so that negligence on the part of the operator of the bus might be shown. Permission was granted and after an adjournment during Thursday, the case was again taken up for trial.

Mrs. Fenwick, who brings the action to recover $35,000 for the death of her husband, John Fenwick, who was killed near Esopus when the Highland-Kingston bus crashed into a tree following a collision with a car alleged to have been driven by Mr. Seides of New York, testified that her husband was 39 years old, was employed at the Hercules powder plant as a powder presser and earned about $35 per week.

Plaintiff rested. Motions to dismiss the complaint on the usual grounds were denied and a motion to dismiss the complaint as against John DuBois was also denied.

Two passengers who entered the bus below Esopus were sworn. Messrs. Walker and Van de Bogart of Shady, who were employed by the Central-Hudson Electric Company, testified that they were standing on the steps at the time of the accident. They said the bus was crowded and was traveling about 20 to 25 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

Van de Bogart, who was on the lower step, said they had alighted from the bus at Mt. Saint Alphonsus entrance and allowed passengers to alight, they had then entered the bus again and taken their position on the steps. Fenwick had entered the bus at Esopus and had taken a position on the front fender of the bus. Walker testified that Fenwick had not changed his position at the time of the crash. Van de Bogart testified that he did not see Fenwick after leaving Esopus and had his back toward the front of the bus and could not see where Fenwick was after the bus started. He was questioned as to his testimony before the coroner a few days after the accident. At that time he said Fenwick was on the step alongside of him, but now he said he could not remember where he was, the last he saw him he was on the fender at Esopus. He said his memory was better at the coroner's inquest than now.

After the bus struck the tree Van de Bogart was pinned to the tree and the bus and Fenwick lay pinned between the tree and the bus with his body driven partly over Van de Bogart's body. Fenwick had to be released before Van de Bogart. Van de Bogart testified that he could not remember a jar or jolt before the crash with the tree or seeing the car which attempted to pass the bus. On the coroner's inquest he testified to both details. The case was continued.

AMUNDSEN WILL MAKE ANOTHER POLAR ATTEMPT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 9.—Undaunted by the failure of his airplane expedition, Captain Roald Amundsen, famous European explorer, will make another attempt next spring to explore the North Polar regions from the air—this time with a dirigible. He made known his purpose today when he arrived in New York on the Mauretania, to commence a lecture tour of the principal American cities. Lincoln Ellsworth, Captain Amundsen's American co-leader on the recent successful flight, will go with him and they will have a crew of 18 men.

The Norge, which at first was offered the explorer free by the Italian government if he would fly the Italian flag, but which was sold to him at a nominal price when he declined, is being refitted with German engines in place of the Rolls-Royce motors with which it is equipped. Hydrogen will be the inflation medium, helium being scarce in Europe. It is planned to have the Norge sail from Rome some time in May, take on gas and supplies at Fiume, England, and then point her nose in the direction of Spitzbergen, the hop off point.

ABANDONED JERSEY AUTO IN CHARGE OF POLICE.

A Chevrolet car bearing the license plate 124-167 N. J., has been taken by the police department and is being held to await the owner at the Suffolk garage, where it was found earlier in the week from Main street, near Washington avenue. The car had been left there on Sunday and several days passed without it being claimed. The police found that the bearings had burned out and it was impossible to move it. It had to be towed to the garage.

McQuigg Elected Legion Head

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 9.—By a vote of 962 on the first ballot, John R. McQuigg of Cleveland, Ohio, was today elected national commander of the American Legion. Fifty seven votes were cast for Howard P. Savage of Illinois, and 224 for E. E. Safford of New York, with the balance not voting.

Then Savage moved that the vote be made unanimous for McQuigg, and there was a wild burst of hands and drums and cheering as McQuigg stood to acknowledge his reception.

McQuigg was captain and then major in the Spanish-American war. He commanded the provisional regiment of engineers on the Mexican border with the rank of colonel. In the World War he mobilized the 112th Engineers served in the Baccarat sector and was wounded in the Argonne. He was later appointed brigadier general of the Ohio National Guard.

General McQuigg read a prepared speech of acceptance and then names were placed for national vice commander.

Joseph Y. Cheney, of Florida was nominated by Connecticut, Ray P. Littlefield, of Rhode Island was nominated by Georgia, Hugh P. Davis was nominated by Kansas; Pennsylvania nominated a native son in Vincent A. Carroll; Idaho nominated a Utah man, Judge James A. Howell, Wisconsin named a Massachusetts legionnaire, Leo Harow. It was announced that the five receiving the highest vote would be elected. The ballot showed election of Cheney, Littlefield, Davis, Carroll and Howell as vice commanders.

A "Model Boy" Is Murdered

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 9.—His father's "model boy" but said by police to be a bootlegger, Nicholas Cironi, 26, a chauffeur, was murdered here early today.

Five or six shots were fired from across the street as Cironi was walking home. The shooting is believed to have been the work of the bootleg gang.

FOUR ARRESTED AFTER MACHINE GUN BATTLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 9.—Four men were arrested and liquor valued at $15,000 was seized during a pistol and machine gun battle around Governors Island early today.

After vain attempts to elude the police boat in the fog, the four men threw up their hands as policemen swung over her rail with drawn pistols.

Cases of liquor were found on board. The four men gave their names and addresses as Jacob Brown, 25, Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston; Henry Cole, 30, New York; William Jordan, 24, Brooklyn and Harry Smith, 20, Brooklyn.

Bandits Kidnap Guards.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—Although scores of officers hunted them today, no trace has been uncovered of seven bandits who last night captured and kidnapped three guards, seized a government mail truck and looted 16 sacks of mail. While helpless spectators looked on, the robbers made off with their loot including six sacks of registered mail. The loss may exceed $100,000.

Escape From Hudson Jail.

Hudson, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Five prisoners escaped from the Columbia county jail here early today by sawing away five iron bars in a window and then dropping 17 feet to the ground. Police of nearby cities have been notified. Local authorities believe the men are hiding in this city.

Crew of Four Missing.

London, Oct. 9.—Four of the crew of the small Swedish training vessel, Gull, were missing today after their craft had been rammed and sunk by the French steamer Capitaine Illiger in the channel of the Isle of Wight. The Captain Illiger saved three of the Gull's crew of seven after a two hours' search.

McCarthy to Manage Cubs.

Probing Fatal Plane Crash

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mitchell Field, N. Y., Oct. 9.—While hundreds of flyers continued today to skim through the air at death-defying speed in the second day's events of America's greatest aviation derby, army and aeronautical officials were investigating the crash of the "experimental" plane which killed Lawrence Buranelli, passenger, and injured Clarence D. Chamberlain of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., the pilot.

Carl F. Schory, secretary of the contest committee of the National Aeronautic Association, said he had instructed Buranelli a few moments before the race started not to fly with Chamberlain, explaining that the competing planes were supposed under the rules to carry ballast in place of a passenger in order to avoid unnecessary risk of life.

Chamberlain bought the plane from the Maryland Pressed Steel Company last spring, converting it from a bi-plane into a monoplane and adding fifteen horse power to the motor. The rebuilding of the machine is believed to have weakened it.

The two events attracting most interest today are the duration race for model air planes for the Mulvihill trophy and the race for large capacity military air planes. A large number of the entrants in the model air plane race represent the Illinois Model Aero Club of Chicago. Last year's record of keeping a model aloft ten minutes and 14.2 seconds is expected to be bettered. The trophy was first competed for at St. Louis, Mo., arousing great interest among the youth of the country.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, viewed the aeroplane model contest, accompanied by Major General-Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service.

Senator Wheeler said he was returning to Washington tonight. Shortly before the first race started a steady rain began to descend. Officials said rain decreased the visibility for flyers, causing them to fly low and adding to the danger of a ground crash in case of engine trouble.

Engines similar to the ones used by Lieutenant Alford J. Williams, navy flyer, when he flew 302.3 miles an hour two weeks ago, were installed in the Williams racer and the machine of his army rival, Lieutenant Cyrus Bettis.

These two aviators are expected to fight it out for first honors in the Pulitzer trophy classic tomorrow. A new world's speed record is anticipated.

BARBECUE ON SATURDAY REGARDLESS OF WEATHER

J. N. Reed, manager of the Advance Restaurant, and his crew were busy this afternoon as Forsyth Park preparing the barbecue which the Jr. O. U. A. M. will serve at their Field Day tomorrow, rain or shine.

Several quarters of beef, two pigs and several lambs were observed ready for barbecuing. These will be ready for serving tomorrow at three o'clock and will continue to be served until all are served or until the parade leaves the park. The coals for barbecuing the meat are being furnished on the grounds by burning hard wood in a pit.

The athletic committee reports that everything is in readiness for some real contests, and that through the courtesy of Ed. Gregory of the Gregory Radio Shop the world series will be received by radio on the grounds play for play.

Some of the good things on the menu for the barbecue are barbecued beef, pork and lamb, potato salad, pickles, coffee, rolls, butter, apples and watermelon. Other refreshment stands will be found on the grounds.

Lansdowne's Widow Blames Navy Department

Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, Widow of Commander of Ill-Fated Shenandoah, Places Responsibility for Disaster on Navy Department—Flight Made for Political Purposes, Charges Widow of Commander.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Defending the memory of her husband, Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, widow of Commander Zachary T. Lansdowne, of the ill-fated Shenandoah, today placed responsibility for the dirigible disaster directly on the navy department in testimony before the naval court of inquiry.

Mrs. Lansdowne flatly told the court her husband had protested vigorously against the flight but that he was overruled by higher officers. Protested Vigorously.

The Shenandoah's commander, she said, was "very much opposed" to the flight and "protested as vigorously as it was within his power to do. He went as far in his protest as he could without being held guilty of insubordination," she declared.

"He felt the Shenandoah should only be used for war purposes," said Mrs. Lansdowne, "and should not be used for commercial purposes, such as a flight to the middle-west so the taxpayers there could look at their property."

Charges Political Purposes.
"The flight was made solely for political purposes," Mrs. Lansdowne charged. She said her principal purpose in appearing before the court was to state that her charges had been borne out "by official correspondence revealed at the inquiry."

She told the board that her statements were amply supported by official documents in the navy department and she then proceeded to read the documents.

Reads Lansdowne's Protest.
One of these was the record of Lansdowne's protest, which was officially marked "disapproved."

Her statement came as a startling surprise to the court of inquiry as Mrs. Lansdowne repudiated a similar declaration made the morning after the disaster.

Board Surprised.
Mrs. Lansdowne's statement, prepared in advance, was received in dead silence. The board's surprise, in fact, was so great that its members conferred for five minutes in whispers before continuing the inquiry.

Adjourns Until Monday.
The court adjourned until Monday immediately after the whispered conference without subjecting Mrs. Lansdowne to cross examination.

A "Man of War."
Her husband, Mrs. Lansdowne declared, regarded the Shenandoah as a "man of war" which should never be used for "political purposes." He took the ship on his last voyage, she added, because he did not want to receive the "stigma of cowardice."

His protests so she declared, were officially overruled "because state fairs were being held during the first week of September and must be down over as scheduled."

In beginning, Mrs. Lansdowne asked to be sworn. She said she preferred to make her statement "under oath."

A second protest by Lansdowne, the widow testified, was against flying the ship to Detroit, without first testing the mooring mast there. This protest, she added, was also disapproved.

Mitchell Incident Ignored.
The latest Mitchell episode is proving perplexing to army and navy chiefs. They had not expected that he would refuse to be sworn as a witness, especially as he asked this procedure be followed by the president's air board, though they did contemplate that Mitchell might decline to answer some questions, pleading jeopardy to his career before the expected court martial.

When court opened today, the Mitchell incident was ignored, the only reference to it being in the routine reading of yesterday's record. That simply said that Mitchell had failed to appear in response to a subpoena.

Casey Jones Won Race.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mitchell Field, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Despite a low ceiling of fog and a driving rain, Casey Jones, veteran commercial pilot of Garden City, won the night commercial speed and accuracy race for civilians today in the National Air Races here. During his Orange-Curtis-Oriole at a speed of 125.42 miles per hour, Casey ran away from the field from the start.

The three-day vaudevillians are flocking back to town, crowding Broadway about Forty-sixth street and west to the N. Y. A. clubhouse. And with them, the usual tales, of which the first concerns a monologist who tried out new material against next season, in a small Indiana town.

Guarding against failure, he instructed the orchestra leader at a signal to swing into several popular songs, of which he sang parodies; always, they say sure-fire in the Dubuques of our land. He had recourse to this expedient even sooner than he had expected. Drea then the audience was wildly indifferent. Cold to parodies. Hopeless.

The manager came to speak to the monologist after the first performance. "You got a swell act," he informed the vaudevillian. "It's good stuff, even if it is too smart for this town. They don't get it. It's too wise for them. Of course, I got it. I laughed. It went over big with me."

"But, say," cautioned the manager, "you know you didn't sing the right words to them songs."—New Yorker.

The Foot's Fire

Every morning in the country forest fires burn up the equivalent of a bushel basket full of $10 bills. When the last 100 is in ashes our daily waste of $100,000 is accomplished and we square away for the day's work to replace with thought and sweat what folly has destroyed.—Columbia.

first to the fifth grades. The new Ford car is now on display at the show rooms of Clinton Van Buskirk, the local agent, on Partition street.

A dance will be held in the community house Friday evening. Music will be furnished by Helen's Synopators.

The first entertainment to be given by the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce will be held November 7 with Smiley Brothers' Jubilee Quintet and the Hill street school. Richard Hunt of Clement street has purchased a Hudson touring car from the Thornton garage. A large number of Saugerties Knights and friends are expected to go to Kingston on the evening of October 12 to take part in the exercises and also hear Father O'Reilly's address which will be given at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Kingston.

Luther Myers of Homesteadville has purchased the large barn on Teezel street from the Hatt-Lyon Co. Mr. Myers will erect a building on the site of his barn which was struck by lightning and burned recently. The Methodist Church choir held a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Overbaugh and son spent Monday evening with William A. Wolven and family at Blue Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly of Ulster avenue and mother of Saxton motored to Albany on Sunday. Miss Grace Kimball is ill at her home on West Bridge street.

Mrs. Dwight Van Buskirk spent Tuesday at West Sand Lake, Pennsylvania. The Rev. T. L. Leverett, M. M. Ballard and Ford Latham are in Schenectady attending the meetings of the Hudson River Association of Congregational Churches as delegates of the Saugerties church. Joseph McGinty and John Murphy have returned home after spending some time in New Jersey.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran Church held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Clarence Genthner on MacDonald street Thursday evening.

TALE OF MIGHTY EATER OF ETAB

Old Man of the North Makes Friends With MacMillan's Party.

Washington.—This is the tale of Akkomdingwa, Old Man of the North, once a mighty hunter, and now a mighty eater and patriarch of Etah, as told by Maynard Owen Williams of the MacMillan Arctic expedition forwarded by "the machine that talks through the air," as the Eskimos call it, to the National Geographic society at Washington.

The amateur radio operator, who relayed the message, was A. W. Everett of station 1 ARE, at Pittsfield, Mass.

"Although it is known as the most northerly settlement in the world, Etah's population is unstable," the message says.

"Tupik and Igloo, summer tent and winter rock house, are not always in the same location. The Eskimo, still a hunter, moves his dwellings to sea or hill according to whether he is pursuing the savage walrus or searching his stone or metal traps for blue foxes or other game. Summer or winter there are likely to be Eskimo settlements at Anorikok and other places farther north.

Not Afraid of Work.

"The dean of Etah society, by living the year round in a rock igloo at the inner break of the Etah harbor, Boomerang, enables Etah to maintain its reputation. When there was work to be done in assembling the planes, this old Eskimo chose for himself a convenient viewpoint and restricted his heavy labor to overseeing the job of paring a new back plaster whose presence was proclaimed only by his peculiar stoop.

"Akkomdingwa came to be known as Old-Crick-in-the-Back. He is father of the tribe's best hunter, Nookapingwa. The old man has staked out for himself a sitting-out job and taken into his home as partner and helpmate a seventeen-year-old girl whose industry is as unnoticeable as his own.

"As an eater, Akkomdingwa is without a peer among the Smith Sound Eskimos and he is as regular with his meals as there are meals. Acquisitive by nature, his stomach, acting as general staff of operations, looks out for itself first.

"When I first heard of him he was reputed the greatest 'bummer' and beggar among a people whose way of inviting themselves to partake of the white man's food might beget more censure were it not for the fact that when opportunity arises they are as eager to share their own as another's. "Akkomdingwa is as clever as any of his juniors and has a real sense of humor. His head not only serves his feet and his stomach, but contains a craftiness that he is ready to place at the disposal of his friends. When a visitor wants a section of walrus tusk made into a gavel head bearing the insignia of his lodge, Akkomdingwa is the one who can do the job.

"He conceived a real friendship for Doctor Davidoff (Dr. Leo Davidoff of Boston), and in return for professional services rendered, which not only relieved the aches of age but also gave the old man a certain standing in his own community, he made a generous present for which he obstinately refused any return. Koels also won his admiration and our ichthyologist proclaims that he has never detected a sign of the mercenary in the old man's makeup.

Weeps for Son.

"When Nookapingwa sailed with Captain Bernier for Ellesmere Island on the Canadian patrol steamer, the Arctic, Akkomdingwa shed real tears, not so much at the temporary loss of his meal ticket, for Nookapingwa's caches of walrus meat will always be at his father's disposal, as at the thought that they may never meet again. Akkomdingwa, clever at keeping inside the law, is committing that unpardonable sin against the cruel North. He is getting old.

"When Akkomdingwa salvages gasoline boxes and coffee cans from the wreckage of expedition work, some of his fellows think him stingy and grasping, but it is really foresight which prompts him to gather fuel for his American cook stove, also salvaged in other years, so that his rock igloo, embellished by his youthful mate and the colorful labels from cans which to him are not entirely legendary fruits, will not be without cheer in that day when cold and hunger exact their toll and the dean of the Smith Sound Eskimos of Etah goes home; let us hope to a land where the joys of the stomach are not unknown.

"It was not mere chance that enabled Captain MacMillan to picture for geographic readers the Eskimo patriarch in the act of eating. That is one task in which Akkomdingwa, whose hard work has long since, if ever, been done, is still a leader without a peer."

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, Oct. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and daughters, Rosie and Mary of Rochester, and Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Newburgh and Roy Vandemark and family of New Paltz were callers at the home of Mrs. I. Vandemark on Sunday.

The proprietor of the Belmont House has improved his property by rebuilding his barn and putting a new roof on.

Mrs. S. E. Scheeler and son James of Brooklyn are spending a couple of weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Silas Krom.

Simon Terwilliger has rented the lower rooms in the house of Mrs. Mary Stevens.

Mr. Rosenblatt, who had a dry goods store in the house of Jacob Feinberg, has discontinued his business and moved his family to Brooklyn.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Arner visited their son, the Rev. David Arner, and family of Ellenville one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ten Hagen and little daughter, Margaret, of Warsaw are guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Ten Hagen.

Harry Vandemark and friend of Esopus and Miss Carrie Slater spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. I. Vandemark.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Surden, who are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby boy at the Kingston City Hospital.

W. L. Krom expects to build on his store and install a new heater.

The Vandemark Brothers, painters and paperhangers, have a large contract at New Paltz.

BIGELOW MORALIZES ON MALDEN WAR TROPHY

Oct. 7, 1925.

To the Editor of The Freeman:

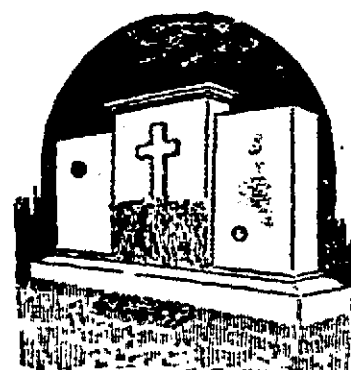

Sir: Your admirably worded account of the war memorial exercises at Malden on Hudson last Saturday made one error only. It referred to our trophy as a machine gun.

Doubtless all guns are machines, but in our case this was a German field piece breech-loading, non recoil, five inch muzzle diameter, nine feet long bronze barrel and weighing 5,500 pounds.

The platform for this mighty engine of destruction was constructed at his own expense by J. O. Winston of Kingston assisted by his Caledonian master mason, Alexander Conlin. Mr. Winston has engineered other great works. Amongst minor efforts may be mentioned the Ashokan dam.

But great architects are not always the best judges of their own genius. Christopher Wren built St. Paul's Cathedral, yet the Chelsea Hospital is now regarded with deeper appreciation.

Washington Irving is now known

Taste in Coffins is being educated by British manufacturers of such products, by means of an exhibition of coffins in London. A great range of coffins is displayed from the old-fashioned affair to modern rectangular chests. They include the mahogany and Chipendale style and the oak and Jacobean style. Both are richly lined with silk. There are also white coffins for babies, and "earth to earth" coffins, which dissolve and disappear shortly after burial.

Payrolls Produce 58% of Income

Manufacturing Wage Bill Almost
Ten Times Total Paid to Farm Hands—New York Leads in Total Amount Paid for Services.

By Telegraph to the Freeman.
New York, Oct. 8.—Total wages and salaries paid by the various branches of industry in the Continental United States, says a statement issued today by the National Bureau of Economic Research, 474 West 24th street, New York, increased with the exception of only minor recessions, practically continuously from $14,960,000,000 in 1909 to $34,769,342,000 in 1919.

The unusual activity in manufacturing industries in 1920 lifted the total payrolls to $41,560,157,000, while the great decline in 1921 in the incomes from manufacturing, mining, construction, transportation, and agriculture led to an equally sharp payroll drop to $34,700,877-000. In 1909 wages and salaries formed 55 per cent of the total current income of the entire population; in 1921 wages and salaries accounted for 58 per cent.

These figures are taken from advance sheets of a report soon to be issued by the National Bureau of Economic Research under the title
"Income in the Various States, Its Sources and Distribution, 1919, 1920, and 1921." This report will give the results of an exhaustive investigation just completed by Dr.
Willford I. King, Mr. Maurice Levin and a corps of assistants under the general supervision of Dr. Edwin F.
Gay and Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, co-directors of research.

Factories Supply Bulk of Wages.
Manufacturing contributes the largest item to the nation's wage and salary roll, accounting for $18, 624,401,000 in 1919; $17,368,540-
000 in 1920, and $11,050,617,000 in 1921.

In 1919, the most representative year, about 39 per cent of the total wages and salaries in the Continental United States was derived from manufactures. Agriculture, on the other hand, which is the basic industry of the country, furnished only a little over four per cent of the total payrolls, surpassing the mining and construction industries by only a very small amount. One reason for agriculture's low wage bill is found in the fact that most of the labor is performed by the farmer himself and his immediate family.

Empire State Leads.

New York leads all the other states in the amount of total pay rolls. In 1919 the employees residing in New York received over 14.4 per cent of the total wages and salaries disbursed in the country. This percentage is particularly striking when it is noted that New York at that time had only about 9.8 per cent of the total population.

New York, with a total payroll of over five billion dollars, was far ahead of its nearest competitor, Pennsylvania, whose industries disbursed $3,673,779,000, while Illinois was third with $2,734,692,000 and Ohio was fourth with $2,384,508-000. Massachusetts was fifth with $1,902,544,000, and California with $1,517,403,000 took sixth place, pushing Michigan into seventh place with $1,507,358,000. New Jersey was eighth with $1,464,335,000.

Where Prosperity is Nearly Stabilized.

New light on the economic stability of a given section of the country is thrown by the National Bureau of Economic Research in its analysis of the relative composition of the total payrolls. A study of the classification of wages and salaries made by the bureau indicates clearly why the income of some sections of the country is likely to be subject to greater cyclical fluctuations than that of others.

The strong position of New York in this respect is clearly revealed by a consideration of the apparent diversity of its industrial activities.
Unlike some of the other highly industrialized states, the sources of the income of New York's inhabitants, and particularly of those dependent upon wages or salaries, are greatly varied in character.

In New Jersey, over 53 per cent of the total payrolls comes from manufacturing. Approximately the same condition is found to exist in Ohio and Massachusetts, while in Connecticut, manufacturing industries contribute over 65 per cent of the total wages and salaries disbursed.

Less Shaken by Business Storms.
The situation in New York, however, is entirely different. In spite of the fact that the manufacturing pay-rolls in that state are the highest in the country, they represent less than 40 per cent of the total wages and salaries in the state, the bulk of the payroll being due to miscellaneous industries, of which commerce and the allied activities form a very important part. It can readily be conceived that the community or state not leaning too heavily on one type of industry is in a better position to weather business depressions.

In this connection, the State of Michigan furnished a good example of excessive concentration along specialized lines. In 1919, about 53 per cent of the total payrolls in that state came from manufacturing industries.
Of the total of these manufacturing payrolls, about 43 per cent was received by employees in the automobile industries; in other words, the automobile industries in the State of Michigan contributed roughly 23 per cent of the total wages and salaries disbursed in that state.

Results of Concentration.
What are the results of such concentration in times of depression?
Putting the total payrolls in Michigan for the three years under observation on a percentage basis, with 1919 as 100, gives the following relative numbers:

1919	100
1920	121
1921	84

This shows a spread of thirty-seven in the total annual earnings of employees between 1920 and 1921. The corresponding figures for New York, however, were:

1919	100
1920	122
1921	107

Or a difference between 1920 and 1921 of only fifteen. While in Michigan the total amount of the payrolls in all industries for 1921 was 16 per cent below 1919, in New York it was seven per cent above the 1919 mark.

The same principle seems to have worked in most of the other states.
Ohio, for instance, with nearly 52 per cent of its payrolls coming from manufacturing, which is heavily weighted with the metal industries, suffered heavy losses in its 1921 payrolls, these aggregating only 87 per cent of the 1919 total. In Iowa, on the other hand, where only 21 per cent of the payroll came from factories the 1921 payrolls were four per cent higher than those of 1919.

Measuring Economic Welfare.

The study of geographic units from the standpoint of the total amount of income received in each is undoubtedly of value, but, after all, of more intimate interest are the social units—the individual or the family. To say that the wage earners in a certain state received 10 per cent of the total amount disbursed in the entire country does not tell anything about the individual income of the wage earners.

The state with the greatest share of the country's income may well be the poorest from the standpoint of the population residing therein, if there are too many to share in that income. To judge the comparative economic position of individuals in the different states, one must have averages rather than totals.

How Employees Fare.

How do average earnings of employees compare in the different parts of the country? Are the states with the highest absolute payrolls also those where average individual earnings are highest? The investigations of the National Bureau of Economic Research are intended to throw light upon this subject. The averages presented in the statement issued today are based on estimates of total wages and salaries disbursed in all industries in each state during 1919, 1920 and 1921, and estimates of the total number of the employee attached to all industries in each state at the middle of each year. It therefore follows that the figures shown are not hypothetical full-time earnings, but, presumably, are the averages of the approximate amounts actually received by all employees, irrespective of the length of time employed in each year. The year 1919 is again chosen as the representative of the three years studied.

It is interesting to note that the list is headed by three Western states, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming, and that all the states included in the Mountain and Pacific divisions, with the exception of New Mexico, fall in the first half of the array. The Southern states are practically all included in the lowest quarter with Mississippi bringing up the rear. The industrial states are all to be found in the upper part of the array, while the agricultural states of the Middle West occupy the center. Although New York leads with the largest total payroll, it ranks fifth according to average earnings per employee in 1919. Pennsylvania with the second largest payroll is thirteenth in employees' prosperity and Illinois third in total, is eighth in the average earnings list.
How have average earnings changed in the three years? The most important point that strikes the student of the National Bureau's figures is the fact that not in all states were average earnings lower in 1921 than in 1919. The depression of 1921 seems to have missed a number of states—at least in so far as wages and salaries are concerned —so much so that in such states the average earnings were actually higher in 1921 than in 1919.

Where Earnings Increased.

The most striking increase in average earnings is shown in the case of the District of Columbia, where government employment is the dominant influence. The reduction of personnel in government departments since the war apparently affected the lower positions more than the higher ones. In addition to this explanation, the increase in average earnings of employees may also be explained by the fact that actual increases in the rates of pay were made in government departments in 1920 and 1921. Government institutions are, as a rule, very slow to respond to changes in conditions. In 1919, and particularly in 1920, on account of the high cost of living and the high business and industrial activities of the country, there was a great agitation for higher salaries for government employees. The claims were deemed just and steps were taken to relieve the situation.
However, it appears that government inertia introduced a lag between the application of the pressure, or the cause, and the final relief. We therefore observe the characteristic situation that, in the wake of gen-

Opening of "Y"
Boys' Division

The Boys' Division of the Y. M. C. A. will hold its formal opening on Columbus Day, October 12, at 1:30. At this time boys whether they are members or not, who are twelve years of age and over, may by securing tickets before Saturday noon, take part in the big basketball tournament that afternoon.

The tournament will be an elimination contest between teams, and every boy who secures a ticket will be placed on a team and given a chance to play.

Following the tournament and the swim in the natatorium, the boys will enjoy one of the Y's famous meat pie dinners. Those who have been present at a boys' banquet in the last three years know what that means and it needs no other word of commendation.

Mr. Hall, the boys' secretary, announces that after the dinner Al Baker of New York City and Dummy Dennis of Brooklyn will entertain the crowd. Those who have the privilege of knowing Dummy and his sidekick Al, know that he is the real goods.

To be eligible to partake in all this fun, means that the boy must secure his ticket from the Boys' Division office before Saturday noon. Already several boys have signed up and the signs all point to one of the best opening days that the "Y" has held for boys in many years. Tickets are selling at a nominal price and every cent of the admission goes into the banquet.

WHEN NOBLES ALONE WERE BOOK BUYERS

All Editions Were "Firsts"
in Olden Days.

Nowadays if a man has a first edition he is called a bookworm. In the days of King Henry VIII, if a man had a first edition he was called a noble. Libraries were small; books were precious then. Only royalty and nobility could afford them; only they had the wherewithal to pay for them.

Henry himself had an exceptional volume, the gift of Pope Leo X to the monarch as "Defender of the Faith." It was the four gospels in one binding. His story is a bit uncertain as to when this book was written and where, but it was done in semi-uncial letters of gold on vellum dyed royal purple. All books in that day were first editions, and it was a wonderful age for new kinds of pictures and new type styles, the New York Times states.

A translation of Aesop's was the first book with relief engravings. Bernard von Breydenbach's "Peregrinations on Terre Sainte" was the first French book ever to have engraved plates. Rodolfo of Venice did the first color printing in 1485, and Mary Queen of Scots had the second edition of the first maps ever engraved, done in Rome in 1490 by Petrus de Tuerre. They were hand-colored maps of "Ptolemy's Geographica." These first colored pictures ran to reds, browns and blacks.

Illustrations took on a distinctive turn in the sixteenth century under the influence of Albrecht Durer of Nuremberg, who, about 1511, put woodcuts on the crest. Hans Wechtlin, a follower of Durer, created one of the earliest chiaroscuro woodcuts, the title-page border for Gualtherus' "The Life of Alexander the Great."

While the art of illustration was developing type was being created in various styles and publishers were dating their books, thus authenticating first editions. The "Gutenberg" Bible, traditionally believed to be the first book printed from movable type, in Mainz, about 1458, was followed the next year by the first dated book in the history of printing, the original edition of the "Mainz Psalter." The first dated piece of printing, however, was in 1454, and the second piece, a papal indulgence under the date of April 13, 1455, has come down to us through the centuries.

For several years after printing came into use Bibles and psalters held full sway in the trade. One may safely assume, then, that printers' "devils" did not come into existence until the printing trade got away from exclusively religious printing. This break from the routine of Bible and psalter publishing came in 1488, when Faust and Schaeffer of Mainz printed the first comparatively light literature—"Rationale Divinorum Officiorum," by Guilelmus Duranti.

Prince's Dignity Hurt

There are public houses (saloons) almost innumerable in England which go by the name of "The Prince of Wales." It would be interesting to know why H. R. H. should be saddled with such dubious responsibility, and put in the same category with Blue Boars, Jolly Farmers and Bald-faced Stags. The prince himself tells an amusing story of an occasion when he was made to suffer innocently. It was during his university days. While at Oxford, he wanted to get in touch with a friend in town, and he tried to ring him up on the telephone. He had a great deal of trouble, and at last the servant at the other end was induced to admit that his master was out. He was a new servant, so the prince forgave him for the length and manner of their fruitless telephone conversation; but later, he said to his friend: "I tried to get a message through to you, but I think your man took me for a public house!"

Modern Youth

"Modern young people are a sad lot. Heaven only knows what's going to become of them!" said Cortlandt Bleecker at a Piping Rock luncheon. "Some folks hold that the girls are worse than the men," he went on, "but—

"Well, I was talking to one of these modern young men the other night, and he said to me:

"Girls are the limit. You can't trust 'em. There isn't a girl alive today that I'd trust out of my sight."

"You're bitter," I said. "What makes you so bitter?"

"Well, I'm engaged at the present time to five girls," said he, "and there isn't one of them, not one of them, I can trust."

Sad Case at Sandy Mush

"I hear tell that Toke Sagg over there at Sandy Mush has plumb lost his mind," stated Lum Dumm of Slippery Slap. "That so?" returned an acquaintance. "What has he done?"

"Why—good gosh!—he's swapped off three of his best dogs for a Hoodin' Nanny car, and an unscrupulous providence only knows what he'll do next!"

The Walts

In the olden days the walts was considered the last word in dancing. Its introduction into circles where the quadrille or the cotillon had reigned supreme caused almost as great a sensation as present-day jazz made a few years ago. The walts was not played faster then than it is nowadays. It was always the "dreamy" walts and never became a gallop.

THE VLY.

The Vly. Oct. 9.—Thursday, October 29, will be one of the great dates in The Vly when a Halloween party will be held in the church hall. The following committee is in charge: La Verne Palm, Eleanor Moeller, Maed Bush, Ethel Krom, Theresa Costello. Ward ghosts will give visitors at the door and as they enter this mysteriously illuminated den they will spy a tent, in which dwells a real Halloween witch who will tell fortunes as she requests a charm over the enchanted children. Fish ponds, shorts, gypsies and surprises will give plenty of thrills all night. Also pretty made from which Land will serve cake, coffee, lemonade, These winsome maidens alone should be enough to inspire anybody's presence.

Knew the Owner

There was nothing the professor disliked so much as to see the ignorant public get false information—especially on the subject of ornithology. So when he observed that an incorrect scientific name had been attached to a cage of birds at the park zoo, he summoned the attendant.

"Don't you know that these birds do not belong to the family Paridae?" he asked.

"Sure, I do," replied the attendant. "The zoo bought 'em last week."

Convention of Waterway Ass'n

State Engineer Finch Addresses Convention of New York Waterway Association at Albany—Great Need for Clear Thinking.

By Telegram to The Freeman
Albany, Oct. 9.—State Engineer, Roy G. Finch, was the chief speaker at the opening session here today of the sixteenth annual convention of the New York Waterway Association.

Mayor William S. Hackett welcomed the 150 delegates. Former Senator Henry W. Hill of Buffalo, president of association, presided.

State Engineer Finch discussed the future of the barge canal and the state's water power policy.

"Regrettable as it may be and reluctant as I am to mention it," Finch said "the barge canal is accepted as a failure by too many people, and as something in which the people have invested $200,000,000 from which they are not receiving any ample or proper return."

"There never was a time in this state when there was a more crying need for clear thinking in relation to the waterway and water power than right now."

George Clinton, Sr., of Buffalo, was scheduled to address the association on "Present condition of canals and highways."

R. having radio sets are invited to "Listen in," by Mrs. Frederick Menges, regent of the Saratoga Chapter.

College Women's Club Formed

An organization meeting of the Kingston College Woman's Club was held Thursday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. There were 21 college graduates present who signified their desire to form such an association.

Mrs. Edgar N. Palen was elected chairman pro tem and took charge of the meeting.

Those present voted to formally organize a local College Woman's Club, to meet once a month at such times and places as to be decided upon later. A nominating committee was appointed by the chairman to prepare a slate of officers to be presented at the next meeting. It was voted to have dues of one dollar per year.

The Club was invited to hold its next meeting with Miss Marguerite Cordes, at No. 44 Maiden Lane, on Thursday, October 22, at 8 p. m.

Those present included Miss Laura Bailey, Miss Marian Bigelow, Mrs. Ward Brigham, Miss Edith Case, Miss Virginia Conaro, Miss Marguerite Cordes, Mrs. Theron Culver, Mrs. J. E. Doolittle, Mrs. C. L. Dunn, Miss Helen Elmendorf, Miss Jean Esley, Miss Ada Fuller, Mrs. R. E. Haley, Miss Dorothy Joslovitz, Miss Henrietta Manning, Miss Jane Mauterstock, Mrs. Edgar N. Palen, Miss Elsie Rice, Miss Ruth Scott, Miss M. Caroline Whiting, Mrs. Rose Wittler.

A number of other college graduates have signified their desire to join the Club.

RADIO

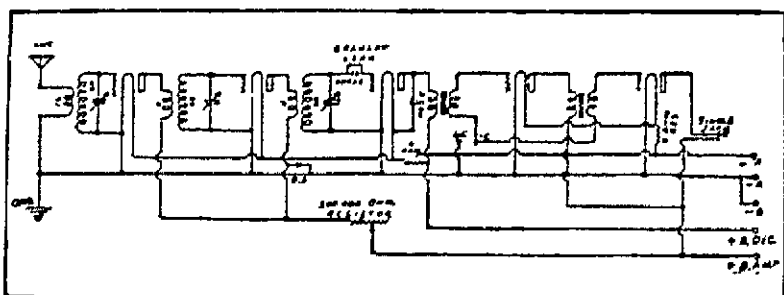

Diagram of Five-Tube One-Dial Set Which Will Tune in Many DX Stations—Many Little Knobs Are Eliminated.

In an effort to give the radio fan a set that will do almost everything that can reasonably be asked, Capt. H. H. Kramm, of Woodlynne, N. J., has designed a five-tube radio-frequency set that, from all indications, has every other set of its size backed off the map. All the principal tuning is done with one dial, and it truly can be called a one-dial set. There are many sets claimed to be one-dial sets, but they have a lot of little knobs that all figure largely in the tuning. With Captain Kramm's set the tuning is done with one dial. On the distant stations there are two verniers on the condenser that enable the listener-in to clear up the sounds.

The set is extremely sharp, and Captain Kramm says that at his laboratory at Woodlynne, three miles by air line from Station WLIT, he was able to tune in WTAM, Cleveland, 385 meters, and WHAS, Louisville, 400 meters, and completely cut out the powerful local station. When WOO is on the air he can cut out this station and get WMO, Memphis, which operates at 500 meters.

One of the things that will interest the fan who desires to build his own set is that Captain Kramm has been getting the Pacific Coast consistently during the summer. He has had KFI, KNJ, both of Los Angeles; CKCK, Regina, and KGO, Oakland, Calif. He has also tuned in Honolulu (KYQ), a number of times. The fan must not expect to get this last-named station around 10 or 11 o'clock at night, as there is a difference of five and one-half hours between Philadelphia and Honolulu.

The last time Captain Kramm tuned in this station he had them on the air for about one hour. It was about 5 o'clock our time when he tuned in Honolulu. He got 42 distant stations in two nights.

Readings Can Be Calibrated.
Another important feature about this set is that the dial readings can be calibrated. The only thing that will necessitate a change in the numbers logged is the use of another antenna.

The condenser used is a special type, just being put on the market. It is three condensers in one, with two verniers. The rotor plates are on the main shaft and all move at one time. The vernier on one side moves the stator plates of the first condenser, while the vernier on the other side moves the stator plates of the second condenser. The stator of the third condenser is immovable.

The coils are of the duo-lateral type. This is absolutely necessary, as Captain Kramm has used other types of windings and found the results not as good as when the duo-lateral windings were used. The best thing the average set builder can do is to buy three 75-turn duo-lateral coils on 2 1/2-inch forms. Take 15 turns off each coil, part of which is to be used for the primary winding. The 60 turns remaining on the coil form the secondary. Cover the secondary with two layers of varnished cambric, and then add the necessary number of turns to form the primary windings, as shown in the diagram prepared by Captain Kramm.

The base board is 17 inches long, 8 1/4 inches deep, and all the parts are to be mounted on the top of the board. No subbase is used.

List of Parts Needed.

The parts needed for the construction of this set, excepting tubes, which should be the 201A or 301A, battery, and loud speaker, are as follows:

- 1 Scientific compensated multiple condenser.
- 5 Scientific sockets.
- 1 Bradley leak.
- 1 Bradley condenser, 00025.
- 1 6-ohm rheostat.
- 1 2-ohm resistor.
- 1 200,000-ohm DX resistor.
- 1 0.5 N. Y. coil capacitor.
- 1 0.025 N. Y. coil capacitor.
- 1 Solderless switch.
- 1 Dongan transformer 6 to 1.
- 1 Dongan transformer 32 to 1.
- 7 Binding posts.
- 1 Panel 10 by 7 inches.
- 10 Lengths cable tie.
- 1 Radio-frequency coil, 60 turns secondary, 16 turns primary.
- 2 Radio frequency coils, 60 turns secondary, 8 turns primary.

The parts above are those used by Captain Kramm. He states that other makes can be used efficiently in most instances, but that it is absolutely necessary that the set builder follow the specifications as to the number of turns on coils and the size of transformers and fixed condensers and resistors to get the desired results.—Philadelphia Record.

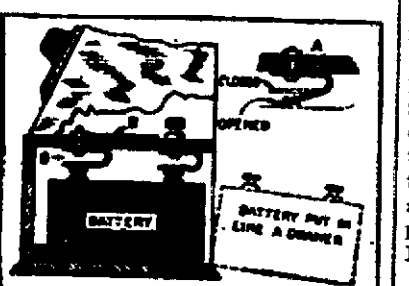

Neat and Efficient Radio Battery Cabinet

This novel radio "B" battery cabinet is designed for the set owner who desires neatness and efficiency.

It is constructed to eliminate unsightly wires and makes the removal and replacement of "B" batteries a very simple matter, somewhat similar to the changing of the batteries in a flashlight.

The battery is inserted from the rear and pushed all the way in, contact being made by spring brass clips. A connection is made for the 22 1/2-volt in the front of the cabinet and is brought to the rear by a brass strip. Connections can be made by bus bar to the set from these posts. The cabinet shown in the sketch is designed to take a 7 by 18 panel, but a larger one can be made.

The interior measurements for the battery compartments are as follows: Length of each compartment, 8 1/4 inches; depth, 6 1/4 inches, and height,

An Excellent Method of Disposing of "B" Batteries.

4 inches. Spring contacts are 3 by 1 inch, bent in the center. Perfect connections can be made and the danger of short circuits and improper hooking up of the batteries is entirely eliminated.—Radio News.

Use a Voltmeter

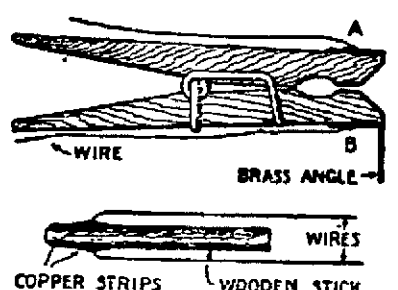

Brilliance of the tubes is a poor index of their operating point. Its use as a guide is apt to result in the tubes being burned too high. Either use a voltmeter across the terminals of the tube or turn down the rheostat to the point where it begins to cut the signal strength. Nothing is gained by having it any higher.

A Good Ground

A wire from the front of the house to a pipe in the rear will not make so good a ground as a wire down the side of the house attached at a place where the water pipe enters the house.

Closed-Circuit Jack and Plug Easily Made

Nearly every object around the house has more or less use in a radio set and here is a use for the clothespin. Procure a clothespin of the type that is illustrated in the sketch and bend around the ends A and B strips of thin copper for contacts. As the jaws of the pin are normally in a closed position, these contacts will normally be closed. Lead wires are soldered at the points A and B. The plug is made from a wooden rod that fits snugly between the jaws of the clothespin. On this rod are fastened two contacts to which are soldered the phone leads. This jack and plug are easy to construct and should prove of value to the experimenter.—Radio News.

Jack and Plug Should Prove of Value to Experimenter.

May Reduce Static by Burying Your Antenna

Try this type of antenna with your own receiving equipment.

Use a single piece of No. 14 rubber-covered wire, such as is found in house wiring. The end to be put farthest from the house is stuck in the open end of a shotgun shell or can, and the shell filled with sealing wax to keep the wire from corroding after contact with damp earth.

The antenna wire is buried one foot underground, the end that is to be used as a lead-in being brought to the surface directly beneath the window, near which the set is located.

A piece of lead tubing is slipped over the lead-in, completely shielding it from the antenna binding post of the set to a point just beneath the ground. This shield is grounded to the water pipe, like the ground wire proper.

This keeps the exposed part of the antenna from picking up energy from the air.

"Ask For Dave" News

D. KANTROWITZ KINGSTON.

Let's review some of our suit specials that we're putting out.

You know that we feature two pants suits, and we're sure our list of prices will satisfy you. We have a real good number at about $12.85, and then following closely, are two pants suits at $15.85, $18.50, $23.50, $26.35, and so on, and up to as much as you would care to spend for a suit.

Now these come in many styles. There are two button, single breasted Collegian models with the new Wales semi-tail cut with those broad shoulders and sort of a somersault waist; then six button, double-breasted, Collegian models which made such a big "hit" in this Fall's Fashion News.

And then we also make it a special point to get any sort of a conservative or middle-aged style that is made. For instance, long and short coats, long and short suits, and regular conservatives. We handle these mostly in American Worsted and Serges and Imported Fabrics, although among our vast assortment of conservative suits can be found some cassimeres, too.

Ninety-five per cent of our suit stock is made with a genuine Hymon front, as regards the coat of the suit, which insures against wrinkling.

And again, don't forget, see us about that Overcoat NOW, for the time for wearing it is just about here.

If you never have worn our "Family Shoes," we are sure, you are surprised for if you haven't, you have surely missed the pleasures and joy of "Foot Comfort."

Yours,

Dave

(Signed)
HIS PARENTS, BROTHERS AND SISTER.

In loving memory of Andrew Krom, who departed this life two years ago today, October 3, 1923.

We miss thee from our home, dear father,
We miss thee from thy place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face,
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

New York, Oct. 9.—The stock market encountered very little opposition in its forward price movement today. The "old line" motor and industrial stocks stood at the head of the list and moved upward aggressively on heavy buying demand.

Bullish traders received at least another week of grace in the marking up of the Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate.

The market ignored favorable news in the transportation industry, but manifested considerable interest in the published opinion of the head of the Woolworth stores that retail business this fall would smash all previous records.

S. S. Kresge jumped 46 points to 700 as the feature of the mercantile stocks. Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, etc., about 3 points in the maximum. Studebaker reached a new high at 61 in active trading. Chrysler moved up 6 points to 198; Dodge Brothers A rose 3 points to a new high above 40.

United States Steel and about five of the independent steel shares enjoyed a period of good buying, at the best prices for the movement. Coppers were firm.

Pan American and Marland led a good rally in the oil stocks in the fourth hour, the latter reaching a new high for the year at 48 1/2.

Firemen March Despite Rain

Spectators Also Brave Storm This Afternoon to View Parade of Kingston's Firemen—Large Number in Line.

It takes more than a steady downfall of rain to dampen the spirits of Kingston's volunteer firemen, and shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon the first companies to take part in the big firemen's parade scheduled for this afternoon passed by The Freeman office to its place in line at the intersection of Strand and Ferry street.

The first fire companies were Rapid Hose in their white shirts and blue pants and Union Hose in their natty blue uniforms. They were headed by the Citizens' Band who dispensed a cheerful brand of music that made the spectators forget that the heavens were dropping moisture.

The Rapid Hose boys were wise and each one was armed with an umbrella.

While there is no question but that the unelement weather prevented the parade from being as large as expected, it simply goes to show that it takes more than a rain storm to prevent Kingston's fire laddies from turning out and parading when called upon to do so by their officers.

The parade was scheduled to start promptly at 2:30 o'clock but there was some delay in getting started as it was thought at first it would be postponed until another day. This it was said could not be easily arranged as all of the volunteer firemen had arranged to take half a day today from their regular jobs and the three bands had been hired to play this afternoon.

A striking feature of the parade this afternoon was the advance shown in modern methods of fire fighting. Each fire company that paraded did so with its present equipment and also with the old style fire fighting equipment that in its day was considered the "last word."

As the old time hose carts that had not been seen on the streets in years moved by in the line of march old timers along the way remarked to one another of the days when they were boys and the fire work in fighting fires that had been accomplished by the apparatus that now is obsolete.

Practically all of the modern fire fighting apparatus now used by the Kingston fire department was also in the parade and it gave every one who witnessed the parade a chance to see for themselves the developments made by the passing years in fire fighting efficiency.

Following the parade it was expected to stage a demonstration of fire fighting by old and modern methods at the Athletic Field.

Baby Elephant as Pet

Wanting to give a more substantial wedding present than furniture or cut glass, Bernard Rule of Newark, N. J., gave his daughter, Elsie, when she was married to Carl Strohm, a baby elephant. He told his daughter, as she called for a honeymoon trip to Europe, that the animal, besides being a pet, is a good investment, for it could always be sold for more than it cost; and as the elephant lives for several hundred years it will be in the family for some generations.

Expressive

Little Arthur, when asked if he would like to stay with his grandmother a few days, answered decidedly, "No, because grandma is too full of don'ts."

STARTING FIRE WITH OIL.

MRS. BROOKS BURNED HAND.

Mrs. Lewis J. Brooks, who resides on the fourth floor of the Crosby building, Broadway and St. James street, Thursday afternoon was preparing to kindle a fire in the stove when some kerosene oil she had in a bottle caught fire as she was pouring the oil in the stove. Her hand was quite severely burned before she got to the window and threw the bottle out.

The firemen were called but found that there had been no damage from fire.

Smiley Sells Ellenville Home.

E. A. Smiley consummated the sale of his fine residence property, foot of Warren street, Ellenville to John P. Gelsler. The house, one of the best residences in town, was built in 1897, by Miss Clarinda Strong, on a plot of land purchased from the late John McElhone. Following her death, about twenty years ago, Mr. Smiley purchased the property, making additions to and greatly improving the house and securing additional land. The present sale was for around $6,000.

FIRE PREVENTION. Question—When a frame building burns down, what is left? Answer—The chimney alone, because it is built of brick. Chimneys are built of brick because they are fireproof. Why not construct the whole building of brick, that is Real Fire Prevention. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. When you build, use brick exclusively. There may be a slight increase in first cost, but always a large saving in maintenance. Building brick and sand. TERRY BROTHERS CO. Tel. 1674.

Bishops Vote Brown a Heretic

Episcopal House of Bishops Sustains Conviction of Bishop of Arkansas for Heresy but Sentence May Not Be Pronounced.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 9.—But one step remained today for the final banishment of Bishop William Montgomery Brown, former bishop of Arkansas, from the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States as a heretic and pronouncement of the sentence by the Rt. Rev. Elbert Talbot. The "Brown case" has attracted international attention for the past three years. The heresy conviction of the trial court in Cleveland was upheld last night by the House of Bishops after a two hour executive session by a vote of 95 to 11. Bishop Brown retains his seat and full powers as a bishop of the church until the final passage of sentence, the time for which has not yet been fixed.

That this may end the "Brown case" and that sentence may never be passed upon the aged prelate was the intimation given by prominent churchmen here today.

Bishop Brown, who lives at Gallen, Ohio, and retired from the Arkansas Diocese, attracted wide attention with his book "Communist and Christianity" upon which the heresy charges were largely founded. After an investigation made on motion of Arkansas churchmen, a presentment was returned against the bishop and he was tried in 1924 and found guilty of heresy, the appeal being confirmed last January by a review court.

Pollyanna Frames Dad

LEONA (POLLYANNA) NEUBERGER

Leona Neuberger, or Pollyanna, for a long time wanted a mother. When her father received ardent love notes, presumably from Miss Emily C. Harrison, a neighbor, he arranged a wedding date without first consulting Miss Harrison. When the guests congratulated the "bride-to-be," she knew nothing of it. Investigation proves it the work of Leona, who still has only Dad and the dolls as her loved ones.

Give your watch a square deal

You frequently have your automobile overhauled to clean out carbon, to insure lubrication and good running order.

But your watch, a mechanism far more delicate—are you as careful to keep it in good condition?

Twenty-four hours a day without interruption your watch must run. Meanwhile the oil evaporates and becomes gummy, tiny dirt particles sift in, even through the most tightly fitting case, and eventually the timekeeping performance of the watch is impaired.

To give your watch a square deal, have it cleaned, oiled and adjusted at least once a year and avoid heavier repairs later. Experts in our Service Department will do this for you at moderate cost.

And when you pass our store, just look over our complete stock of the latest style watches dressed in attractive Wadsworth cases.

Cordially yours,

ARE NOT AGREED ON ORIGIN OF HOOSIER

Some Opinions Put Forward Not Complimentary.

What the term "Hoosier" means, and the origin of it, is a question that persists through the years. More than ninety years ago it was discussed in the newspapers, and though the reasonable and probable answer was then indicated, which the Indiana Democrat of October 20, 1833, copied from the Cincinnati Republican, an improbable explanation that chance to get a footing is nearly always given in answer. It is that the nickname rose from what was said to be the habit of Indiana pioneers of hailing a cabin with the call "Who's yere?" No authentic pioneer chronicles tell of any such expression.

A common hail was: "Hello the house!" in Indiana and elsewhere. More worthy of credence is the notion of James Whitcomb Hiley, who maintained that Hoosier evolved from the characteristic scrappiness of the pioneers who in settling their differences bit off each other's features. When after one of these pleasantries, a belated citizen arrived on the scene and saw a detached ear lying on the ground he naturally asked: "Who's ear?" Other stories than these derived the word from huzzar, huzza and husher. None of them merits serious consideration. Another story not quite so unlikely is that when the canal was being dug a contractor by the name of Hoosier employed workmen from the Indiana side of the river. These became known as Hoosier's men, and as there were a great many of them, the use of the name spread until it became associated with Indians generally.

The discussion of 1833, referred to above as quoted from the Cincinnati Republican, had this to say: "The word Hoosier is indebted for its existence to that once numerous but now extinct class of mortals called the Ohio boatmen. In its original acceptance it was equivalent to 'Rip-staver,' 'Scrounger,' 'Screamer,' 'Bulger,' 'Ringtail roarer,' and a hundred others."

By some caprice the appellation became confined solely to such boatmen as had their homes upon the Indiana shore, and from them it was gradually applied to all the Indians.

The writer of this perhaps did not know that the word was not confined to the boatmen on the river, but extended southward and was probably common then, as it certainly was later in the more primitive sections, especially in the mountain districts. Today one may find the word Hoosier there as an expression of contempt for an uncouth and unkempt person. That it made its way northward as part of the southern vocabulary along with the tide of immigration from the South hardly admits of a doubt, and that it attached to the typical early Indian is an uncomplimentary probability. As the cultural status of the people changed the word gradually lost its earlier implications but retained its place. The first appearance of the word in print, as far as known, is in the Indiana Palladium for July 30, 1831, which, describing Noah Noble as a horse in the political race, says: "He may be called a 'Hoosier.'"—Indianapolis News.
